VIPGames.com Data Breach

THREAT

VIPGames.com, a platform providing free versions of classic board and card games has exposed the personal details of 66,000 users. In total, more than 23 million records were left exposed on a misconfigured Elasticsearch server.

Exposed information includes usernames, emails, device details, IP addresses, hashed passwords, social media IDs (including Facebook, Twitter, and Google), in-game transaction details, bets, and banned players.

ADVICE

If you suspect your credentials have been leaked, you should change your password as soon as possible.

If you have used the same password on any other accounts, you should change it there too.

Services such as www.haveibeenpwned.com can tell you if your information has ever been made public in a major data breach.
